

DERBY DRAWS 70,000 RACING FANS

PENNSY PRIMARY IN STRETCH

RESULT OF CONTEST REMAINS DOUBTFUL AS END APPROACHES

Grundy And Pinchot
Gain On Organization
Candidates

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 17.—The most amazing primary campaign that rock-ribbed Republican Pennsylvania has ever witnessed roared into the stretch today with all the candidates claiming victory and no one, not even the so-called "bosses" being very confident of just what is going to happen on Tuesday next.

The cross-currents, the undercurrents, and the conflicting eddies of this most unusual of all keystone political contests are such that even the most sage among the Pennsylvania prophets are chary of predictions. Publicly they proclaim their confidence that James J. Davis or Joseph R. Grundy will be nominated for senator, that Clifford Pinchot or Frances Shunk Brown will win the gubernatorial nomination, and privately they admit they don't know what is going to happen.

Here in Harrisburg, the capital of the state, from which political spokes radiate out to the mighty organizations in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, the prevailing opinion is that Pinchot will win the governorship contest unless, as they naively put it, he is "counted out." Concerning the senatorial fight between Davis and Grundy, they think it is a horse-race and an even money bet.

The big question mark appears to be deeply the winning wet ticket of Thomas W. Phillips, for governor, and Francis H. Bohlen, for senator, is going to cut into the other two tickets. No one gives them much of a chance for victory, but there is general agreement that the fate of Davis—and Grundy depends upon how Brown and the fate of Pinchot—many votes the wet ticket polls next Tuesday.

The political rail birds of the state capital believe that if the Philadelphia-Bohlen combination cuts deeply it will be fatal to Davis—and Brown, for the wet votes will come from them rather than from the Grundy and Pinchot candidates. Both Grundy and Pinchot have declared themselves dry, so the wet votes that go to Phillips and Bohlen won't come from them.

Brown has declared for a statewide referendum on the prohibition question, which both the wets and the dries have denounced as a straddle. Davis has said nothing on the issue except to a heckler

COACH CLEARED OF ASSAULT CHARGES

MASSILLON, O., May 17.—J. A. Alton Funk, athletic coach and physical education director at Lorain Andrews Junior High School here, was freed today from a charge of assault and battery in connection with the slapping of one of his pupils.

A jury of four women and eight men took less than two minutes to return a verdict of not guilty in municipal court here yesterday. The assault charges were lodged against Funk by Mrs. Edna Schrock, mother of Donald Schrock 15, pupil at the school, whom Funk admitted he slapped. The teacher testified that he slapped the youth only as a reprimand when the boy refused to stop swearing because of a gym difficulty.

EXTORTION SCHEME RESULTS IN ARRESTS

CLEVELAND, May 17.—Four alleged "shakedown artists," believed to be Detroit racketeers, were under arrest here today on charges of suspicion in connection with an attempted extortion scheme.

Three of the men were said by police to have admitted an attempt to extort $15,000 from two local wholesale grocers.

Herman A. Garson, president of the Economy Cash and Carry Company, said one of the men demanded $10,000 of him on a threat of violence to his six-year-old son. Fred Grossman, the second grocer, told police that $5,000 was demanded of him.

The suspects told authorities they came to Cleveland from Detroit yesterday morning "to make some easy money quick."

FAIRFIELD POPULATION GAIN BIGGEST IN STATE

The village of Fairfield in Bath Twp., has shown the largest percentage of gain in population of any village or city yet reported in Ohio for the last ten years, according to an announcement made Saturday by Wilbur H. Story, Springfield, supervisor of the 1930 census for the Sixteenth Ohio District.

Fairfield's present population, as shown by a preliminary count of the returns of the Fifteenth Census, taken as of April 1, 1930, is placed at 1,240, as compared with only 329 in 1920. This is a gain of 911, or 276 per cent in the last ten years. No farms were enumerated

In the Fairfield area in this census. Figures released for Jamestown village in Greene County indicate the population of this village has fallen off by ninety-five residents since 1920. The present population is listed at 944 as compared with 1,039 ten years ago. Nine farms are included in the Jamestown district.

The Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' Home, state institution located outside the Xenia city limits, has a population of 806, a decrease of seven in the last ten years, Supervisor Story announced. One farm was enumerated at the Home.

MAUDE ADAMS BACK

Maude Adams, who made Peter Pan an immortal being for thousands of Americans, will return to the stage next season in a Broadway production of a "modern romantic comedy" now being completed, New York dispatches say. Photo shows Miss Adams at the time of her last appearance in New York in 1917.

PLAN SEGREGATION OF OHIO PRISONERS IN INSTITUTIONS

Griswold Ordered To Estimate Cost Of
New System

COLUMBUS, O., May 17.—Conceiving a plan for the scientific segregation of prisoners in Ohio penal institutions, the welfare advisory commission of Governor Myers Y. Cooper today had ordered Welfare Director Hal H. Griswold to prepare an estimate of the cost of execution of the plan.

The plan may also result in the stationing of staff psychiatrists and psychologists at the various state prisons, including the Ohio State Penitentiary, the Mansfield Reformatory, the London prison farm, and the brick plants which are operated by the penitentiary officials.

Briefly, the arrangement would embody the segregation of insane, feeble-minded and psychopathic prisoners from the main body of convicts in the prisons.

"This segregation is the most acute need in Ohio's present prison situation," Griswold declared in commenting on the order.

The funds would be obtained from the state control board out of the emergency funds of the state. The cost would undoubtedly total thousands of dollars yearly.

CONDEMNED MAN IS UNDER CLOSE GUARD

SYDNEY, N. S., May 17.—Fearing that Ingrida Anderson, condemned to die on the gallows next Tuesday, would attempt to commit suicide, the prison authorities today placed him in a special cell which was virtually tantamount to solitary confinement. Anderson, a noted ski jumper, whose home is in Berlin, N. H., was convicted of killing a Sydney hotel clerk.

POLICE BAR INDIAN RAIDING GROUPS BY "PASSIVE" METHOD

One Group Charged And Several Hurt; Arrest 200

LONDON, May 17.—Police once again initiated the policies of Mahatma Gandhi's disciples today in India in meeting "passive" resistance with "passive" opposition according to Central News dispatch from Bombay.

At Dharasana, where police sat it out for twenty-eight hours yesterday with Mrs. Sarojini Naidu and her followers, constables met a new party of volunteers who wished to conduct a raid today on the salt pans in the city.

Squatting pleasantly in the middle of the road, the police adopted the same attitude as they did Tuesday with Mrs. Naidu.

Both parties continue to eye each other according to last reports.

At Shiroda, however, police charge volunteers attempting to raid salt depots and several were injured.

Two hundred were arrested.

Two thousand volunteers left the congress house in Bombay and marched toward Gwardi, this afternoon, where they plan to spend the night, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch.

In the morning, they plan to swoop down on the Wadala salt pans, making a Sunday raid by ten different routes.

ABDUCTOR OF BABY SOUGHT

CHICAGO, May 17.—Search for two-year-old Mary Agnes Moroney spread toward California today with receipt of a note by the child's parents that the abductor, a young woman who posed as a social worker, was taking the baby to the Pacific Coast.

"Don't worry about your baby," the note read. "I've taken her to California and will be on my way when you receive this. You can spare her for two months."

The note was signed "Julia Otis" and was wrapped in a five dollar note.

The woman appeared at the Moroney home Thursday in answer to a plea for financial help. She introduced herself as a social worker and took the baby out "for some clothes."

NEGRO ATTACKER SENTENCED TO HANG

COVINGTON, Ky., May 17.—Found guilty of attacking a white woman, Anderson McPerkin, 18-year-old Vaco, Tex., Negro, today had been sentenced to "hang by the neck until dead."

After deliberating one hour and ten minutes, a circuit court jury of seven women and five men, found the Negro guilty of the assault charges which are punishable by death, according to Kentucky laws.

FOUR DRINKERS DIE

NEW YORK, May 17.—The epidemic of wood alcohol deaths increased today with reports of four additional victims. The number of fatalities for the week now stands at ten. Warning against use of alcohol for drinking purposes was again broadcast by health authorities.

STUDENT HELD

Charged with seeking to extort money from Mrs. F. W. Emery, millionaire widow and society woman of Pasadena, Cal., Bernard Swalley, 21-year-old college student and scion of a prominent Alabama family, has been held in jail at Los Angeles. Photo shows Swalley beside the spot where he is alleged to have ordered the money buried. After a series of death threat letters, the youth was taken as he dug up a box containing $3,000, planted by a detective disguised as Mrs. Emery, according to police.

POLICEMEN CAUGHT AMONG 34 ARRESTED BY FEDERAL AGENTS

Councilman, Former Mayor Arrested In Dry Raids

NEWARK, O., May 17.—The sensational dry raids here today had netted federal prohibition agents thirty-four arrests, including one city councilman and four policemen. The alleged violators were taken to Columbus where they were arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Joseph W. Horner on charges of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition laws.

The policemen, Earl Hockley, Leroy Elben, Carl Hupp, and Karl Koblenz, were released under $1,000 bond each and the councilman, Sam Gallagher, was held, pending arrival of his bond.

Hearings for the rest of the thirty-four, who are being held in Franklin County Jail were fixed for Wednesday, May 28.

W. H. N. Stevens, a former mayor of Newark, was also arrested last night on a charge of receiving money on false pretenses in connection with a previous liquor case.

The federal raid, which came as the result of several weeks of careful planning was centered on the clubrooms of the Eagles' Lodge and the Druids' Lodge.

STUDENT DEAD IN AUTO CRASH

MEDIA, Pa., May 17.—An automobile bearing five members of the University of Pennsylvania freshman La Crosse team overturned near here this morning, killing one of the students and seriously injuring the other four.

The dead and injured were extricated from the wreckage by employees of the Wawa Dairy Company.

The dead: Morris Walk.

The injured: Donald Blish, Robert E. Davis, Ralph Ernst and Alexander B. Lyons, of Montclair, N. J., the driver of the car.

FALL PROVES FATAL

COLUMBUS, O., May 17.—David Davies, 73, retired city waterworks employee, is dead here today as the result of a fractured skull which he sustained when he fell down the cellar steps of his home late Friday.

BODY OF NEGRO BURNED BY MOB IN TEXAS TOWN

Alleged Slayer Is Killed
By Police After Battle

HONEYGROVE, Tex., May 17.—State authorities were to open an investigation today following a demonstration by a mob of 400 persons which last night seized the body of a negro slayer from police officers, dragged it through the streets and burned it.

The Negro, Fay Johnson, 36, killed Forest Fortenberry, a land owner, when the latter questioned him about a debt. Johnson then barricaded himself in a cabin and fought off police officers by firing more than fifty shots.

Police bullets finally found Johnson and the crowd rushed the cabin, seized the body and tied it to an automobile. It was then dragged through the streets to the Negro quarter, suspended from the limb of a tree and set afire.

Order was restored immediately after the slayer's body was burned.

Honeygrove is fifty miles east of Sherman, Texas, scene of riotings one week ago in which a mob burned down the Grayson County courthouse, killing George Hughes, Negro attacker of a white woman.

CHICAGO RACE TRACKS CLOSED

CHICAGO, May 17.—Hawthorne and Thornton tracks, two dog racing plants said to have contributed $2,000,000 annually to the coffers of the Capone gang interests, were definitely closed today.

The appellate court, in a decision issued late yesterday, held that betting on dog races was illegal, thus dissolving a temporary injunction which allowed the racing plants to operate pending a decision by the supreme court on the legality of their system of betting.

Attorneys for the dog track interests admitted that it will be impossible for the tracks to continue in operation under the appellate court decision. The state supreme court, however, will be asked to review the appellate court decision, according to Attorney Daniel Healey, representing the Hawthorne track in Cicero, Ill.

However, the high court recently indicated its stand when it referred the dog case to the appellate court for decision.

GRAF ZEPPELIN TO BEGIN LONG FLIGHT

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, May 17.—The great globe-trotter of the air—the Graf Zeppelin—was ready once again today to begin an ambitious voyage through the skies. South America, and the United States were to be reached.

Tugging fretfully at the numbers of sandbags that held her seaward, the huge air liner seemed suddenly humanly conscious of its next flight.

At exactly noon Sunday, Eastern Daylight Saving time, (5 p. m. local time) the silvery bulk of the dirigible will cast off its earthly bonds and head toward Seville, Spain, first stop and re-fueling point before heading over the wide stretches of the South Atlantic Ocean for Brazil.

CLASS FIGHT IS PROBED

O. S. U. Prexy Says Rules Broken By Freshmen And Sophomores.

COLUMBUS, O., May 17.—President George W. Rightmire of Ohio State University, today started a probe into alleged violations of campus rules by freshmen and upper classmen during Traditions Day when the students are said to have engaged in free-for-all fights.

In the annual tug of war yesterday afternoon, the freshmen were pulled into Olen-tangy River near the Ohio Stadium by the sophomores. A free-for-all fight and ducking match followed.

Decisions of this trio mean much in the world of sport, for they are placing judges of the famous Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs, Louisville. Photo shows, left to right, S. H. McMeekin, announcer of third horse to cross the finish line; Sherman Goodpastor, announcer of the horse coming in second; and W. H. Shelley, who proclaims the lucky winner of the Derby.

SUSPEND ULLMAN AS EXECUTOR OF ESTATE OF LATE VALENTINO

SAXOPHONE PLAYER SENTENCED TO PEN; BLAMED FOR DEATH

Convicted By Jury Of Manslaughter In Columbus

COLUMBUS, O., May 17.—Kenneth Driggs, 24, youthful saxophone player today faced a sentence of from one to twenty years in either Ohio State Penitentiary or the Mansfield reformatory. He was convicted late yesterday afternoon on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the fatal injury of Ercole Artista, of Columbus, when Driggs' automobile collided with Artista's machine on March 31.

A verdict of guilty was returned by the jury after two hours of deliberation.

Two women, Mrs. Marie O'Neil and Mrs. Winnie Morrow, both of Columbus, who were riding with Driggs when the collision occurred, declared that Driggs was trying to show them "how to do it." Driggs testified that he was not going more than thirty miles an hour when he ran into the parked car of Artista. He admitted however that he and his two companions had visited a speakeasy shortly before the accident occurred.

Attorneys for Driggs announced today they would file a motion for a new trial.

Accused Of Fraud, Mis- management And Misappropriation

LOS ANGELES, May 17.—Pending investigation of charges of mismanagement, attempted fraud and misappropriation of funds, S. Geo. Ullman today had been suspended as executor of the $1,000,000 estate left by the late Rudolph Valentino.

The charges which were preferred by Valentino's brother and sister, Alberto Guglielmi and Maria Guglielmi Strada, are enumerated as follows:

1.—Allegations that because of Ullman's mismanagement the estate is so depleted that he has been unable to pay a $15,000 mortgage on real estate and government income tax claims.

2.—That Ullman lent $50,000 to a corporation known to have been in financial difficulties, and that the concern is unable to pay the loan; that other unpaid loans amounting to $40,000 were made to an individual. It is alleged both were made without sufficient security or without court sanction.

3.—That approximately $22,000 had been appropriated by the executor for his own use and remains unpaid.

4.—Allegations of fraud attempt were made when the executor is said to have caused a quiet title action to be filed against the estate by a corporation he controls.

H. F. Stewart, assistant trust officer for the bank of Italy, has filed a petition in court that he be appointed administrator of the estate. His petition will be heard Monday.

Ullman was formerly Valentino's manager and has been executor of the estate since the actor died in 1926.

JUDGE HOUGH HELPS INSPECT OHIO CAMP

PORT CLINTON, O., May 17.—Major-General Benson W. Hough, judge of the Federal District Court for the southern district of Ohio, and Adjutant-General Arthur Reynolds returned to Columbus today following their inspection of the grounds and buildings at Camp Perry near here.

The state training camp is being prepared for the opening of the 1930 season within several weeks. Several new buildings have been erected during the past year.

GALLANT FOX STILL FAVORITE AS TRACK DRIES OUT FOR RACE

Earl Of Derby Will Occupy
Box For Sports
Classic

By DAVIS J. WALSH
I. N. S. Sports Writer

—By the taps it is only a quarter of a mile. By the watch it is just two seconds more than two minutes. To the eye, it is a series of split-second impressions that beat upon the retina until the unconscious mind reels under impact. But there is nothing quite like it this side of the hereafter and so the fifty-sixth running of the Kentucky Derby will play upon the heart strings of a nation late this afternoon and make it barked to the magic of its song.

A lone survival of romance in a day of materialists, the great race had drawn its crowd this morning from the world and its four corners. Seventy thousand people, the saturation point at Churchill Downs, will be there when they call the derby field to the post shortly before 5 o'clock, central standard time, and a census taker would have to poll the country in order to list them according to their homes.

Dozens of special trains have brought them into town from Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland, Cincinnati, St. Louis and other cities hard by and have housed them in the railroad yards over night.

New York and Philadelphia society were there of course. So were visitors from as far west as San Francisco and Los Angeles and from as far south as New Orleans.

The Earl of Derby himself will occupy a box of honor at the finish line and may make the presentation speech to the winning owner, although the governor of the state usually functions at the ceremony in question.

Either way, it is the almost universal belief this morning that the neck which arches under the floral horseshoe will be that of Gallant Fox.

There were fifteen colts and one filly nominated in the overnight entries but only two of them, Gallant Fox and Tannery, the E. F. Pritchard colt, were given more than passing attention. They were the recognized contenders. The rest of them, including Crack Brigade Gallant Knight, Gone Away, High Foot and Uncle Luther, were just so much background.

Indeed, the play on Gallant Fox figured to be so heavy that most of the others, except of course, Tannery and the Bradley and Three D's entries, may be coupled in the field, for betting purposes, in order

WILL SUBMIT DRY REFORMS TO VOTE

CHICAGO, May 17.—Preliminary steps to provide Illinois with a state referendum on prohibition in the November election will be taken immediately, it was announced today by A. J. Cermak, Democratic party leader.

Three questions are to be submitted to the voters under the plan announced by Cermak.

They are:

1.—Shall congress repeal the Volstead act?

2.—Shall congress pass a resolution for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment?

3.—Shall the Illinois general assembly repeal the state search and seizure (prohibition) act?

THIRTY FUR-PRODUCING COUNTRIES TO EXHIBIT WARES IN LEIPZIG

Center, airplane view of fair grounds and building; fur-bearing animals, left, above, down, bear, seal, silver fox; right, English fox, leopard, brown fox.

The first international fur and hunting exposition will be held in Leipzig, Germany, from the end of May to the end of September. Every fur-producing country is sending characteristic exhibits illustrating every phase of the fur industry. Villages of fur gatherers will be transplanted from China, Russia, Alaska, 30 countries in all, from the Arctic to the tropics, being represented. Thousands of live animals will be displayed in a great park, which will reproduce the natural habitat of the various species of fur-bearing animals. The entire process of preparing fur for the market will be shown in detail, from the curing of skins and life in the fur camps, to the display of the latest fashions in furs. A fur congress will be held during the exposition to discuss fur trade problems,

NATIONALISTS SMILE AS THEY BREAK SALT LAWS

These people, as happy as folk on a holiday, are in reality gathered together for a serious purpose—to break the British salt monopoly law in India, in response to the exhortations of the Nationalist leader, Mahatma Gandhi. They show a group of young Nationalist supporters of Gandhi taking water from the sea to manufacture salt, and Miss Talayerkan, comely Gandhi disciple, tasting salt manufactured at Whorli, a seaside resort, near Bombay, to which thousands of people have flocked to break salt laws.

LUMBERTON

The Ladies' Aid Society met with Mrs. Eliza Oglesbee at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Orville Curry, Wednesday afternoon. After a very interesting meeting was held, Mrs. Oglesbee and Mrs. Curry, assisted by her daughter, Miss Veda Curry, served a delicious refreshment course of angel food cake and ice cream and punch.

Quite a number of boys and girls gathered at the home of Miss Susanna Hiatt Monday night reminding her of her 15th birthday anniversary. The evening was most pleasantly spent in dancing and playing games, after which a delicious refreshment course was served.

Several from this place attended the funeral of Miss Amy Wilson held at the Holaday Funeral Home in Wilmington, Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Oglesbee attended church services in Wilmington Sunday.

Mr. William Lieberman of Georgetown, spent Sunday with his brother, George Lieberman, and wife.

Mr. and Mrs. David Linkhart and daughter spent Sunday in Jamestown with Mr. and Mrs. Hanna Brand.

Honor Veteran Teacher At Dinner

IN recognition of his fifteen consecutive years of service as a teacher of a one-room grade school in the Paintersville village school district, during which time he had a record of never missing a day's teaching for any cause, Harley Hollingsworth was honor guest Friday night when about 350 people gathered at the Paintersville M. P. Church and enjoyed a basket dinner followed by an interesting program.

Mr. Hollingsworth's teaching record is believed to represent the longest tenure of any Greene County teacher in a one-room school. He has been teaching school for the last thirty years and formerly taught in the Jefferson Twp. school district.

Through an arrangement made with the state department of education providing for a readjustment of the Caesar Creek Twp. school district next year, the Paintersville district in which Mr. Hollingsworth has been teaching will be transferred to Bowersville and he will serve as principal of the consolidated grade schools of the district.

Following the basket dinner at the church, H. E. Bales, member of the Greene County Board of Education, presided during the program.

Mr. Hollingsworth gave a lengthy talk, reviewing his work during his teaching career and at the conclusion of his remarks requested that all those who had ever attended school as his pupil, stand up. A majority of those present arose.

It has been Mr. Hollingsworth's custom to give a dollar to each child who had not missed a day of school during the year, but instead of giving a dollar this year the teacher presented twenty-two of his pupils with a Bible, with a personal note and his autograph on the fly leaf of each book. To eighteen other pupils he gave Testaments.

Brief talks were then made by Joda Thomas, Wilmington, former teacher of the one-room school in 1888; A. E. Faulkner, a former teacher; Harold J. Fawcett, former pupil; Superintendent C. A. Devoe, Bowersville; H. E. Aultman, county school superintendent; Mrs. Ora Mason and Mrs. Mary Devoe, both of Paintersville and the Rev. C. A. Arthur, Bowersville.

Mr. Hollingsworth and his twin brother, Charles, president of the Jefferson Twp. school board, were called upon for vocal duets and responded to a number of encores. They also entertained the assembly with accordion duets. Other musical entertainment was furnished for the occasion by Grant Landwehr, Mrs. Ora Mason and Jesse Ary.

FOUR XENIANS FACE WIRE THEFT CHARGE IN ATHENS COUNTY

Alleged theft of approximately 1,900 pounds of copper wire from mines, brick factories and other places in Athens County over a period of the last six weeks is thought to have been cleared up with the arrest last Monday night at Nelsonville, O., of Elmer Sharp, 916 E. Church St., Xenia.

Following his arrest, Sharp implicated three other Xenians in the series of robberies and his alleged accomplices were subsequently apprehended by Xenia police and taken to Athens County to face prosecution with Sharp on grand larceny charges.

Implicated, it is said, with Sharp in the wholesale theft of copper wire were John Dunbar, 24, 38 Jefferson St.; Harry J. Green, 24, Third and Columbus Sts., and his brother, William H. Green, 32, 126 N. Columbus St., all of Xenia. Sharp is the father-in-law of Dunbar.

Dunbar was arrested Thursday and the Green brothers were taken into custody Wednesday night.

Court records, according to Police Chief O. H. Cornwell, reveal that Sharp was convicted of grand larceny for chicken stealing in February, 1928, and served a term in Ohio Penitentiary.

It is claimed that not only were Athens County mines and factories looted of copper wire but that the quartet even cut down trolley wires.

Confessions are said to have been obtained from Dunbar and Harry Green that the wire was sold for sixteen cents a pound, far below its actual value.

ESCAPE OF CONVICT DURING PEN BLAZE IS NOW DISCOVERED

COLUMBUS, O., May 17.—A request to penitentiary officials that the personal effects of a reported dead convict be sent to his sister, resulted in an investigation today which divulged the apparent fact that Edward Lovelace, who had been serving a life term for murder, escaped from the state prison here during the April 21 fire disaster.

Mrs. Ruth Drew of Omaha sent a letter to penitentiary authorities stating she had heard that her brother, Lovelace, had perished in the recent catastrophe, which exacted a death toll of 220. She requested that his belongings be sent to her.

Lovelace was not listed as a fire victim. A cellmate, Charles Locke, Cuyahoga County robber, said Lovelace died of fright and was carried out. Authorities believe he is attempting to shield Lovelace. Chas. Shank, Ottawa murderer, said he saw the missing man walk out. Lovelace is said to have worn two rings on one hand and his wife's name and a bracelet were tattooed on his left wrist. None of the dead convicts was so marked. A check now being made may show other convicts escaped at the same time,

NOOKS CONVICTED OF LARCENY CHARGE

Vaughn Nooks, 23, colored, was found guilty of burglary and larceny by a jury in Common Pleas Court Friday. The court deferred passage of sentence for three days to permit defense counsel an opportunity to file a motion for a new trial. Vaughn's brother, Robert, 22, pleaded guilty to a similar charge Thursday and drew a sentence of from one to fifteen years in Ohio Penitentiary.

As an outgrowth of the theft of ninety-six chickens from Maywood Turner, Clifton and Wilberforce Pike, September 10, 1929 the Nooks brothers were secretly indicted by the October grand jury and were eventually traced to Washington, Pa., where they were arrested and returned to Xenia last April 2.

An entry directing payment by Sheriff Ohmer Tate of total fines and costs amounting to $1,379.85 assessed against operators and ticket sellers of the Fairfield Amusement Park, Ltd., out of confiscated funds in his possession, seized in a raid on the Fairfield dog race track last July 26, was approved Friday by Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy.

The balance of $1,123.87 was ordered paid to Attorney Frank L. Johnson, counsel for the partnership organization. Three of the principal promoters drew fines of $500 and costs each and twenty-four ticket sellers who pleaded guilty to selling pools on dog races were each assessed $10 and costs.

SATURDAY, MAY 24, ASSIGNED AS POPPY DAY IS ANNOUNCED

Saturday, May 24, will be "Poppy Day" in Xenia this year. Arrangements for the annual sale of memorial poppies to be worn in honor of the World War dead are progressing rapidly under the sponsorship of the local unit of the American Legion Auxiliary, Miss Helen Potts, chairman, announces.

"The Saturday before Memorial Day has been adopted almost everywhere in the United States as the day for paying tribute to the men who lost their lives in the World War by wearing the poppy," Miss Potts explained. "Joseph P. Paddy Post, No. 95 unit of the Auxiliary is preparing to give every man, woman and child in the city an opportunity to wear the poppy this year. We will have our poppy workers in all parts of the city throughout the day and hope by the end of the day to have placed a poppy on every coat."

"The wearing of the poppy has a double significance. The wearer not only honors the war dead but in buying the poppy contributes to the welfare of the disabled and the families of the dead and disabled. Every penny which the Auxiliary receives from the sale goes directly to the relief of disabled veterans and the families left dependent because of the war. The poppies are made by disabled men and all the work of the sale is done by volunteers from the Auxiliary and other cooperating organizations."

"The burden of relief work which the Legion and Auxiliary are called on to carry is becoming heavier each year as more and more veterans are taken from the ranks of wage earners by the disabilities of war. At this late date it is exceedingly difficult to win government aid for the men who break down from results of their war service and the responsibility for their care falls increasingly on the service organization."

"The citizens of Xenia have always made a generous response to the Legion and Auxiliary poppy sale. I hope that the response can be made more generous this year for the need is greater than ever. A poppy on the lapel May 24 will mean honor to the dead and service to the living."

WILBERFORCE WILL GRADUATE 150 JUNE 12; COOPER MAY TALK

Wilberforce University will graduate a class of approximately 150 students at its sixty-seventh annual commencement exercises Thursday morning, June 12 at 10 o'clock, according to an announcement made by President Gilbert H. Jones.

Avery A. Shaw, president of Denison University, Granville, O., will deliver the commencement address and Governor Myers Y. Cooper has tentatively accepted an invitation to attend the ceremony and speak briefly during the program. Harry D. Silver, state director of finance, will also be invited to be present.

Providing the proper arrangements can be made, President Jones plans an outdoor commencement program on the university campus. Arrangements have already been made to obtain loud speakers and proper seating arrangements now present the only problem. In the event of inclement weather, however, the exercises would be held in Jones auditorium.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

OUR HOPE IS ETERNAL—If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable. But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first fruits of them that slept.—1 Cor. 15:19, 20.

CITIZEN OF THE WORLD

The late Dr. Fridtjof Nansen was one of the most useful men of his day. While most widely known as an arctic explorer, Dr. Nansen carried the spirit of adventure into many other fields. At different times he was explorer, teacher, author, statesman, diplomat. At all times he was keenly interested in human welfare. The variety of his activities revealed a broad, as well as a profound and highly developed mind.

The Fram expedition in 1893 introduced Dr. Nansen to the world. The theory he sought to establish was that a vessel frozen in the ice packs north of eastern Siberia would drift with the current toward Greenland. This theory was openly and widely scouted by other scientists; but Dr. Nansen was not to be discouraged. He froze the Fram in the ice packs in September, 1893, and by the following March the ship had drifted to 84 degrees north. Then Dr. Nansen and a companion set out on foot and reached 86 degrees 14 minutes north, at that time the farthest north ever reached by man. Subsequently Dr. Nansen made other trips into the polar region and did much to stimulate interest in arctic exploration among his contemporaries.

When the Swedish-Norwegian crisis occurred in 1905 Dr. Nansen turned his attention to politics. After Norway separated from Sweden it sent him to London as minister. The world was provided him with still another field for usefulness, as high commissioner for the repatriation of prisoners. After that he headed the Russian relief commission. The zeal and ability he displayed in these humanitarian activities won for him the Nobel peace prize in 1922.

The concrete achievements of such a man, while notable, are of infinitely less importance to the race than his success in inspiring other men to think and act along new lines. With Dr. Nansen exploration was not merely a matter of geography. The same instinct that led him into the frozen north lured his keen intellect into the field of frozen ideas respecting human welfare. The great mass of mankind is content to follow in the mental rut into which it is born. A pioneer comes along and points a better way. The race follows where he points. The hardy little country of Norway has produced many venturesome trail-blazers. Seldom has it given the world one who carried the spirit of adventure successfully into so many fields as did Dr. Fridtjof Nansen.

QUOTAING MEXICO

Singling out Mexico from our neighbors to the south and slapping onto it an immigration quota would be a discriminatory act without justification in the necessities of the situation. The Mexican people inevitably would resent it. As the state department points out, administrative measures in Mexico itself have reduced emigration to the United States by more than 76 per cent. The average number of Mexicans coming annually to this country during the past five fiscal years was 56,747. At present they are coming in at the rate of about 13,000 a year. That is not an alarming number. Cutting it to about 1,500, as the senate has voted to do, would serve no useful purpose, would rob certain industries in this country of a type of labor suitable to their needs and would arouse in Mexico a feeling of bitterness for the United States. The house should kill the Harris measure.

Another cause of the breakdown of American home life is mistaking house for a synonym of home.

Apparently a poet laureate can be appointed without a senatorial investigation or the government being charged with playing politics.

Sir Thomas Lipton says that he will lift the America cup this year. That remains to be seen; but if anyone gets away with that bit of silverware, Sir Thomas' genial persistency in attempting the feat entitles him to the honor.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

WHERE IS THAT CITY?

One reads in the headline over a magazine story these words: "A rich man's search for the city that abides."

What and where is the city that abides? It is not the town we commonly know—of streets and buildings, and hurrying people. Old St. John on his island, writing the Book of Revelations, saw a city coming down out of Heaven. And so the city that abides must first live in the vision and the imagination of men. It must come down to them out of the high places of their idealism. Cities that abide are not built from the ground up. They are built from Heaven down.

SENSE FROM THE DUKE

"I know," says the Duke of York, brother of the Prince of Wales, "what real comfort can be given to a home by a wife who is interested in domestic matters." The duke doesn't think there is anything the matter with marriage so long as interest centers in the home.

Commenting on the Duke's remark, a London newspaper editor says:

"It is pleasant evidence, coming from so high a quarter, how far the world has moved on since the old Roman could say that women were an insoluble problem: for men could not live happily with them and yet could not live without them. Fortunately our own columns have borne abundant testimony lately to the fact that the Duke's experience is nowadays the general experience. Not only do thousands upon thousands of couples contrive to rub along very well, but thousands and thousands think they are the happiest married couples in the world."

BUNK?

Somebody asks William Muldoon, famous physical trainer, what kind of exercise he recommends.

"Bunk," replies Muldoon. "Wonderful bunk." Quoted in the American Magazine, Muldoon goes on to say: "Rest is what people need. Rest! Long life and efficiency are brought about by only one thing—conservation of nerve energy. The mind is the only thing that counts. What good is a muscular body if the brain doesn't function? The only reason we want healthy bodies is to produce nerve energy."

"Our health as a nation is being destroyed by this craze for exercise—unintelligent exercise."

"Moderation—and judgment. Use judgment. Rest and relaxation are what men need."

"I am talking of the average man, with ordinarily good health, working from day to day. Not about men who want big muscles or who want to become athletes."

Wind Velocities

What is a "gale"? A gale is any wind exceeding certain limiting velocities. In practice gales are subdivided into "fresh," "strong," and "whole." A fresh gale has a velocity equivalent to 47 to 54 miles per hour, while a whole gale may have a speed of 55 to 63 miles per hour.

Cabinet Meetings

When does the cabinet of the United States meet? The cabinet meets at 10:30 a. m. on Tuesday and Fridays.

Child Labor Amendment

Is there any proposed amendment to the constitution? A new amendment has been proposed and passed by the two houses of congress and is now before the legislatures of the various states. It is "Federal Regulation of Child Labor." This amendment, if adopted, will give congress the power to regulate, and prohibit the labor of persons under 18 years of age.

Fewer Farmers

How many farmers are there in the United States? The farm population is the smallest in 20 years according to the department of agriculture, which estimates the number at 27,511,000 on January 1, 1929, compared with a peak of 32,000,000 in 1909.

Presidential Succession

What is the order of presidential succession? After the vice president, the secretary of state would become president, then the other cabinet members would follow in this order: treasury, war, attorney general, postmaster general, navy, interior, agriculture, commerce, and labor.

Partly Indian

Is it true that Vice President Curtis has Indian blood in him? Vice President Curtis' maternal grandmother was half French and half Indian of the Kaw tribe. He always has been proud of his Indian blood and early upbringing with the tribe.

Typewriter Record

What is the fastest a man or woman has written on a typewriter? George Hossfield, of Paterson, N. J., won the international typewriting contest at Toronto, Canada, in 1929, by averaging 135 words a minute or 8.129 net words an hour.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK.—When the good ship Larson, from New Zealand with the first of the returning Byrd party, docked at the Battery the other day, Sveg Olson, able seaman of the Byrd forces, stepped ashore with two sick-looking penguins, panting from the heat, in a cage.

Every lodging house Olson tried to get in turned him down. Finally he went to the Explorers' Club and was refused there because these birds are so unclean they are only fit to occupy one of those bungalows built by The Specialist. What to do?

Finally he found an ice manufacturing plant in 10th St., where the old Lion Brewery used to be, and got permission to park the birds in the cooler. There they proceeded to go to sleep, tucked in between two sheets of ice and actually snoring.

Don't bring any Penguins to New York and bank on getting in a hotel.

HEALTHY GOTHAM

New York is enjoying an epidemic of health. The hospitals are only from 60 to 70 per cent full; doctors' offices are slack and hundreds of nurses are idle. To keep Pa and Ma New York and the little New Yorkers pulse beating right, their needs clear and eyes bright requires some 11,000 physicians and 12,000 nurses. Nevertheless, there are still between 125,000 and 200,000 persons sick every day in the 200 hospitals, with about 70,000 in the city during every year.

But if you're ever born again choose New York, because the infant born here today can expect to live 56 years on an average, against 41 years at the beginning of the century.

CONTRAST

Hearing that Mrs. James Walker, wife of the Mayor, Florence Reed and Blanche Bates, of the stage, and many millionaires had purchased plots in Hartsholme's Dog Cemetery, where Broadway and Park Ave. bury its canine pets, I recently wandered up there for a look-see.

Sure enough, there was the headstone of "Bunk" Mrs. Walker's prize bulldog, and not far away was a $25,000 marble arch marking the canine graves of two Pekingeses. Betty Randolph, aristocratic Virginia belle, has a wire-haired terrier buried there; on the grave of a Gordon setter, owned by Thomas Russell, business man, was a large rubber ball which is replaced every Christmas. Christine Norman, whose tragic suicide shocked Broadway, left money in her will to care perpetually for the grave of Yoo San, her Japanese poodle; wealthy Mrs. Frances Masterson visits the grave of "Colonel" and "Tiger" every Sunday and the $40,000 marble tomb erected by the very wealthy M. F. Walsh family for their five dogs.

NOW OPEN FOR BUSINESS AT THE OLD STAND

SENATOR FROM NORTH DAKOTA ONLY REAL DIRT FARMER IN UPPER HOUSE

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Senator Lynn J. Frazier, of North Dakota, was explaining to me why agriculture simply has to have government backing, in order to put up a fight for a half-way decent existence, against stifled business and urban industries, with any prospect of getting at least as good as a draw.

It may surprise some folk to learn that Senator Frazier is the only 100 per cent dirt farmer in the upper house of congress.

Time was when genuine, horny-handed women were quite numerous on Capitol hill. In fact, their group, next after the lawyers, who always have predominated, once was the biggest in legislative Washington.

In spite of all the lamentation there has been concerning the decline of rural influence in government, who would have imagined that the honest-to-goodness farmers' delegation in the senate had dwindled to one lone solon.

The farmers have more senate spokesmen than that, to be sure. However, with the exception of Senator Frazier, their spokesmen are not undiluted farmers themselves.

For instance, Senator Frazier's North Dakota colleague, Senator Nye, is an agriculturally-minded as anyone could ask, but, by calling, Nye is a newspaper man.

The very leader of the farm "bloc," Senator Norris of Nebraska (though it is true enough that he grew up pushing a plow), is a lawyer and an ex-judge. Senator Brookhart of Iowa is another lawyer; oh, yes, he also runs a farm, but it is not his sole preoccupation in life.

Several senators (Keyes of New Hampshire, Keane of New Jersey and Townsend of Delaware, to name some of them) are farmer-bankers, but no straightaway agriculturalist will admit that that counts.

Senator Thomas of Idaho and Kendrick and Sullivan of Wyoming can qualify only as livestock men; hence are not dirt farmers, either.

Senator Frazier has not a business or professional interest outside crop growing—and, of course, selling his crops as he has grown them. Or, if he does appear to have certain other interests, it always will be found on investigation that somehow they are incidental to agriculture.

Illustratively, he is an enthusiastic inland waterway promoter—but mainly because he thinks the country's river network ought to be utilized up to the limit in floating crops to market economically.

As for the senate, he is in it to get what he can out of politics for the farmers.

Naturally the comparatively new federal farm board, of which Alexander Legge, previously of the International Harvester company, chairman, is an object of keen observation by the 10th Dakota.

This is the board recently denounced by the U. S. chamber of commerce, in resolutions adopted at its annual meeting in Washington for its employment of government money in an effort to keep wheat prices as high as possible—at the precise juncture when professional wheat buyers would have preferred to be gobbling it up at minimum figures; to sell subsequently at a nice profit.

(The resolutions did not express it quite like that, but it was thus that the senator interpreted them.)

"It is not so much the use of government money that the buyers really object to," observed the North Dakota, "as the way in which Chairman Legge's board had been using it."

Senator Frazier has had considerable experience along this line. He undertook a similar experiment some years ago, as head of a North Dakota farmers' co-operative buying venture—intended, like Chairman Legge's effort, to keep prices up when professional buyers wanted them low.

"But, as one would expect," he related, "we need considerable money."

"Well, we could get it all right—on condition that we employed it exactly as the financiers dictated. Unfortunately, if we had acted as they dictated, the effect would have been precisely opposite to the one we desired. When we refused, credits tightened up and they threw us into a receivership."

"This time, however," pointed out the farmer-legislator, "the government is furnishing the funds, and the government cannot very well be thrown into a receivership."

"About the only thing the speculators can do is to accuse it of having turned socialist."

Socialistic or not, the chamber of commerce resolutions do insist that the farm board's policy has thrown a terrible burden upon business—and, at that, without preventing wheat prices from sagging.

"Who knows," said the senator, "how much more they would have sagged if the board had not supported them?"

Hominy grits are a favorite breakfast food in the south. If you prefer, if the day is hot, substitute a prepared cereal for the grits. The rivelets with the soup you will like.

Today's Recipes

Potato Soup with Rivelets—Four medium potatoes, one-half small onion, three tablespoons butter, salt and pepper, two quarts water, one egg, one and one-fourth cup flour.

Paal and dice potatoes, minced onion and cook together in salted water until tender. Add butter and a dash of pepper. When almost ready to serve add rivelets made by rubbing the egg into the flour. Boil briefly. The rivelets will rise to the top and be yellow and tender. Parsley may be added if desired. Serves five.

Nutmeg Cookies—One-half cup shortening, three-fourths cup brown sugar, one egg, beaten; one teaspoon salt, one and one-half cup flour, three-eighths cup sour milk, one-fourth teaspoon soda, one-half teaspoon nutmeg, one-half teaspoon vanilla. Make like any drop cookies.

Fig Sponge Roll—Three eggs, one cup sugar, one cup flour, three tablespoons cold water, one fourth teaspoon salt, one teaspoon lemon and vanilla mixed. Bake in jelly roll pan. Spread generously with fig jam, roll quickly in towel and dust with powdered sugar.

Coach Replaces Ship
With the vogue for the early American furniture of our ancestors, there has come a renovation or perhaps an introduction of the use of small replicas of famous coaches to take the place of the ship models on the mantelpiece or whatnot.

Diet and Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.
Author of "Diet and Health" and "Diet for Children"

MRS. A. writes: "I am troubled with arthritis. Please tell me the cause. A friend of mine had it and she says she was helped by a certain procedure which I'll tell you of, but I am afraid to try it. Please advise me."

The first thing you should do to go to a competent physician and a very thorough checkup. Mrs. A.

Arthritis (inflammation of the joints) is a baffling disease. It may be caused by one, or a combination of many, wrong conditions. I heard Dr. Hench of the Mayo Clinic give a lecture on the subject once, and he used this illustration:

He had a sketch of a safe—which he called Arthritis. On the dial, instead of numbers, he had the following things listed: Infected tonsils, infected teeth, infected nasal sinuses, chronic appendicitis, chronic infection of the ears, overweight, unbalanced diet, chronic constipation, lack of exercise, etc. Now, he said, in order to open this safe, you may have to turn the dial to a dozen different things before you succeed, or you may just have to turn it to one.

He speaks of overweight as being a double factor: the unbalanced diet which causes the accumulation of weight lowers the resistance; then the drag on the joints and muscles by the weight of the fat, makes the joint trouble worse. Those who are overweight very frequently suffer from arthritis and about as frequently they are relieved when their weight is reduced. Some physicians have noticed that an excess of starches and sugars in the diet, even though overweight doesn't result, seems to predispose arthritis.

In the treatment of arthritis, all the hygienic habits must be corrected, especially the diet. And any focus of infection in the body must be cleared up before you can hope to get results, because there are practically always some types of germs connected with the condition. It may be the constant ignoring of hygienic habits that allows the germs to gain a foothold. One thing that a germ loves is a tissue that hasn't any fighting power. That is what we mean by lowered resistance. The white cells of the blood, which Nature has trained to devour germs, and the tissue fluids and the blood itself, have substances that antagonize them, so when the resistance is low, these factors are also weak.

We have an article that goes into the subject of arthritis a little more fully. Mrs. A. See column rules for obtaining it.

Mrs. D.—You should see a surgeon for that wart of yours that persists under the ordinary treatment, and is sore. It may have cancer possibilities and need radium or other treatment. And the sooner it has it, the better, Mrs. D.

Mrs. S.—Yes, inflammation of the fallopian tubes may be serious. It may subside under local treatment, which has to be prescribed by your doctor: Ice bags, or heat, or ultra violet rays, etc., depending on the type and stage of the disease. Yes, this inflammation may lead to sterility.

We have a pamphlet on the Hygiene of Women which may interest you. See column rules.

TOMORROW: Reduces 80 pounds.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Peters cannot diagnose nor give personal advice. Your questions, if of general interest, will be answered in the column in their turn. Requests for articles or pamphlets on hand must be accompanied by a fully self-addressed, stamped envelope, plus the following: full charge to help cover cost of printing and handling for each article wanted, two cents in coin; for each pamphlet ten cents in coin. The pamphlets are Reducing and Gaining, Hygiene of Women, Kidney and Bladder Disorders. Address Dr. Peters, in care of this paper. Write legibly and not over 200 words.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

How long should a damsel wait for a prostrating lover? And if her love has cooled during the time of waiting, should she still be true to him, or may she feel justified if she lets her affections wander to another and breaks the engagement?

This is the problem of a young woman as stated in the following letter:

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a young woman of 31 and have been going with a fellow for 14 years. I have been engaged to him for about six years.

"Before last year he kept saying soon as he had money we would be married. I was always kept waiting. Last year I had an operation and while I laid in the hospital he came to see me and told me that as soon as I came out we would be married. That was last August.

Last December he was laid off from his job and has been out of work since, only doing odd jobs. He keeps on saying as soon as he gets a job we will be married.

"I have come to like my doctor. He has treated me wonderfully, but I don't know if he is married or not. I really think more of the doctor than I do of my friend, because I have been disappointed so much. The doctor has told people that I was a very nice girl, and while I was in the hospital some of the girls told me that he was stuck on me. He doesn't show any attention to me except he always 'kisses' me. What should I do to find out if he is married?

"Should I break my engagement with my friend and start over again? Another thing that bothers me is that my friend's stepfather is in poor health and it would be up to him to support his mother.

"If you could only give me some advice. Everybody says I am foolish, wasting my time with one fellow."

"LAURA C."

I am rather inclined to think so myself, Laura. As a general thing if a man loves a girl he is eager to get married at the first possible moment. Your boy friend seems to hesitate to assume the responsibility of a home. Of course now he is out of work he has a legitimate excuse but that has not been true of all these years.

If your love was as warm as before, it would be a different matter, but why wait any longer to marry a man you no longer love?

Maybe he feels as you do; maybe his affections have cooled. Or possibly a proposal to break the engagement will make him more ardent. At any rate it would be worth trying. Consider well the step, however, don't break with him and then regret it.

It would be easy to ask the nurses at the hospital if the doctor is married. It may be he has no particular interest in you, you know. Doctors are great kidders. They are always joking and laughing. It is a part of their business to keep people cheered up. It does folks as much good as medicine. It is not impossible, of course, that he does like you and might ask you for a date if he knew you were no longer engaged.

"DEAR MISS LEE: I should like to get an inexpensive gift for a friend of mine. I am a girl of 16 and she is somewhere in her thirties. She's almost like a mother to me for she helps me in all my problems when my mother won't. I should like to have you give me a few suggestions, or would it be better to just send her a card?

WAITING."

A card with a nice sentiment would be nice, dear, or a pretty handkerchief, or a plant, a string of pretty beads, a box of stationery, a book, a vase, a flower for her coat. These may all be inexpensive but pretty, and will express your appreciation of all she has done for you.

How To Achieve Beauty

By GLAYS GLAD

Although the majority of girls and women today take excellent care of their fingernails, there are surprisingly few who seem to realize that the nails require more than the weekly manicure.

Indeed, the nails need daily care. Two or three minutes at the most should be sufficient to keep them in the perfect condition that so greatly enhances the beauty of the hand.

Most girls today have learned the value of pressing back the cuticle at the base of the nails every time the hands are washed. This never should be forgotten, because a few instances of slighting this point will give the cuticle a chance to gain a hold on the nail itself, and begin the growth that is so unpleasant to see on the hand of man or woman.

Each morning, or evening, the nails should be re-shaped with a few careful strokes of the emery board or nail file. The average nail grows very quickly, and this care will keep the oval perfect. Employing a piece of peroxide-moistened cotton on an orange stick or toothpick, clean under the nails. Preferably, this should follow the cleansing of the nails with a nail brush. The girl who wants her nails to look continuously at their best will always apply a bit of olive oil to her fingertips. Even in the warmest days of summer, this will be needed by those persons who have very dry skin, or whose hands are frequently in water.

A way to avoid leaving too much oil on the fingertips is to apply the oil while the hands are still wet, and then wipe the hand as well as the nails. And when drying your hands, always make the drying strokes toward the wrist, to avoid loosening the skin. Perfectly groomed hands are a health asset as well as a beauty asset, for the hands are as much expressive of our characters as is the face.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Large Pores

Betty: Large pores can be refined by egg packs. Also, an excellent astringent for large pores can be made from a 4 per cent solution of boric acid and 8 per cent of witch hazel. The method of applying egg pack is fully described in my Beauty Culture booklet.

On the theory that probably a few persons may be interested in the forthcoming Buckeye Conference track and field meet to be staged at Ohio University next week, we are thinking seriously of letting Douglass W. Miller, author of "Buckeye Conference Chatter," do this column today. In fact, after giving the subject careful consideration, weighing this and that, and debating the matter pro and con, we will let him do it, whether he likes it or not, the decision meeting with unanimous approval. Here is Miller's advance dope on the meet:

Although Miami can win the annual Buckeye conference track and field meet at Ohio University May 23 and 24 without half trying, there will be a lively scrap for second and third places and many of the individual events promise the keenest of competition.

On form so far this season the teams should finish the meet with Miami far in the lead and Ohio Wesleyan, Ohio, Denison, and Cincinnati following in order. The teams are well matched, however, and Miami for winner of the meet is the only certain prediction that can be made.

Huston, Denison, should win the 100 and 220-yard dashes. Lambacher, Wesleyan, defeated him in the longer race last year but the blip veteran has been handicapped by an injury this season. Gordon, Miami, will also figure in these races and should be a certain winner in the quarter-mile. The rest of the 440 field offers little choice and includes a number of men who can run the distance in 51 to 52 seconds.

Reed, Miami, has the best time so far in the 880-yard run while Newell, Ohio, and Fields, Ohio Wesleyan, have the next best records. Morgan, Ohio, mile winner last year, seems likely to repeat although he will be pressed by Murdock, Ohio Wesleyan, and Shugart, Miami. The latter lad, a sophomore, promises to dethrone Dean, Ohio Wesleyan, present champion. Shugart has run the distance in 9:41. Dean will finish in about 10 minutes while Fridge, Miami, Murdock, Ohio Wesleyan, and Morgan Ohio, will all need about half a minute more.

The Bishops have the edge in the hurdles with Mearns and Agnew. These promise to be the closest and most uncertain races of the meet, however, with Woolweaver, Ohio, pressing the Wesleyan holders in both races and Sweetland, Denison, making a strong bid in the low. The time will not be exceptionally fast. The high hurdles appear to be Miami's weakest event and may prove to be the only one in which the Oxford team fails to score.

Rowland, Ohio, has the best pole vaulting record of the season while Miami has a trio of vaulters who will do 11 feet 6 inches in Davis. Cheadle and Luetton, Grant and Marshall of Cincinnati will also figure in the scoring in this event.

Offer, Ohio Wesleyan, with 6 feet 13 1/2 inches has the best high jump record of the season. He will have close competition in Davis. Miami, present conference record holder, and Williams, Denison. Goldmeyer, Cincinnati, will also be a strong contender.

The broad jump appears to be the most uncertain of the field events. Miami with Steinhauer, Buckeye record holder, Stark, and Davis has three men who jump from 22 to 23 feet while Rogers and Williams of Denison are in the same class.

Vossler, Miami, present record holder, is outstanding in the shot put with Ward, Ohio, probably his closest contender. Cheadle, Miami sophomore, promises to displace Reading, Denison, discus record holder and winner. Cheadle has the best discus record ever made in the history of Buckeye conference competition. Rowland, Miami, may displace Fackin, Ohio Wesleyan, last year's winner in the javelin.

Miami seems likely to take the relay unless Ohio can muster speed enough to take the event. Ohio Wesleyan surprised the Oxford team last season by taking a thrilling race from them but cannot repeat unless Lambacher is in condition to turn in his best performance as anchor man.

Five men will be defending conference records set at last year's meet. This is the case with Vossler in the shot put, Reading in the discus, Davis in the high jump, Gordon in the 440, and Steinhauer in the broad jump. All except Reading are Miami men.

Winners in the 1929 meet will be entered again this year in every event except the hurdles. Kane, Wesleyan, winner of both hurdles, was the only one to take a first place in last year's meet. The top-notchers from last year who are back for more now are Huston, Denison, 100-yard dash; Morgan, Ohio, mile; Gordon, Miami, 440; Lambacher, Wesleyan, 220; Vossler, Miami, shot; Reed, Miami, yard run; Davis, Miami, high jump and pole vault; Dean, Wesleyan, 2-mile run; Fackin, Wesleyan, javelin; Reading, Denison, discus; Steinhauer, Miami, broad jump.

Langs Upset Downtown Country Club 10 To 1

WILLIAMS SUBDUES CHAMPIONS EXCEPT IN OPENING STANZA

Winners Deserved Shut-Out; L. Fuller Leads Attack

Behind the airtight pitching of Harry Williams, who yielded only four scattered hits, the Lang Chevrolet Co. softball team stamped itself as a foremost contender for the National League "kitten ball" championship by polishing off the Downtown Country Club nine, 10 to 1 Friday night at Cox Athletic Field.

Williams deserved a shutout. The 1929 city champions were helpless at bat but escaped a hitwashing by scoring one unearned run in the first inning. With two down Huston was given a life on an infield fumble and Parrett scored him with a double. After the opening round Williams was invincible. He held the Downtowners hitless and runless in the last five innings, not a man reaching first base. No Downtowner advanced beyond first base after the second inning.

Williams was accorded great support by Langs, both in the field and at bat. His mates pounded frame, losing pitcher, for fifteen hits, including seven doubles and a triple, and Langs merely coasted to a victory.

Only one misplay was chalked up against Langs in the field where the Downtowners made six miscues.

Williams had his opponents popping up constantly as indicated by the fact the winners had only six assists in the nine innings and Harry had all of these to his own personal credit.

Langs tallied twice in the second inning, scoring enough runs to win the contest then and there. Two more were added in the fifth, another in the sixth, two in the seventh and three additional counters just for good measure in the ninth.

L. Fuller, besides playing a brilliant game in center field, did considerable damage at bat, doubling twice and tripling once. Davis, with a brace of doubles and a single, and Bell, with a trio of one-baggers, vied with Fuller for hitting honors. Box score:

TENNIS PLAYERS RATED BY MATCHES

Matches for rating on Wilberforce University's varsity tennis team were staged Monday afternoon on the local courts under the direction of Coach Graves.

As a result of three rounds of playoff, Ernest Ashe emerged No. 1, Marco Hill No. 2, James Trotman No. 3, George Gibbs No. 4, Jack Scott No. 5, and Charles Wilson No. 6. The No. 1 doubles team is composed of Ashe and Hill, the No. 2 team of Trotman and Wilson.

Ashe of Philadelphia is present Pennsylvania state champion, runner-up three times for the National Junior championship and once mixed doubles champion with Miss Ballard. Hill of Indianapolis is ex-junior champion and at present Indiana state champion.

Trotman of New Rochelle, N. Y., is ex-New York state junior champion, runner-up for the National Junior championship in 1925, winner of New England championship in men's doubles with Johnson in 1927.

Ashe, Hill, and Trotman are ranked in the national ratings; Scott, Gibbs, and Wilson are high school luminaries from Kansas City, New Haven and New York City respectively.

SENIORS PRESENT PLAY SECOND TIME

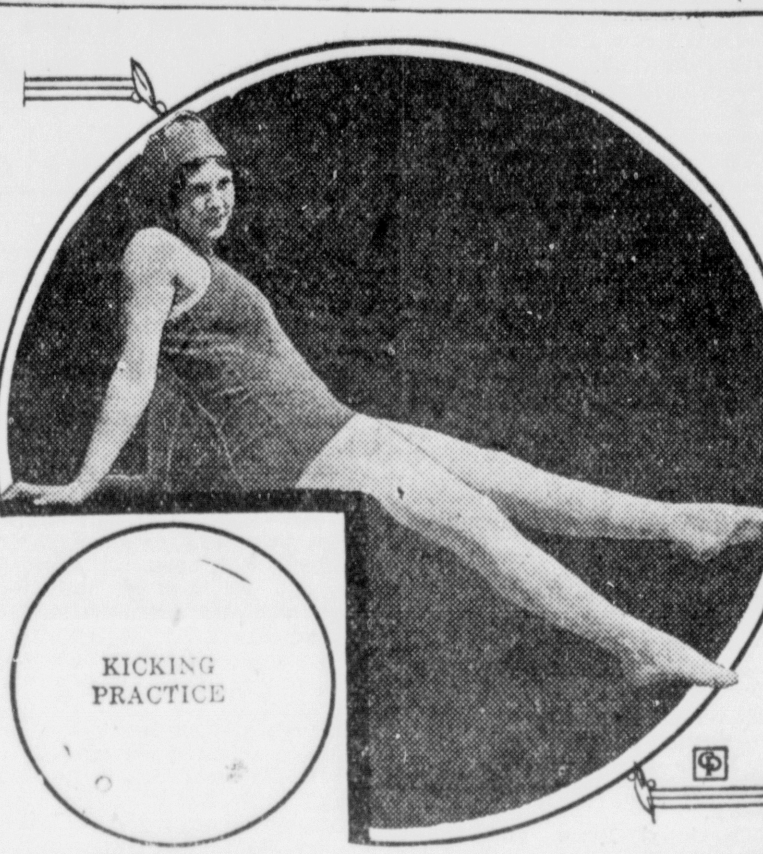

The final performance of "Seventeen," a four-act comedy presented by members of the senior class of Central High School was given in Jean B. Elwell Auditorium, Friday evening before a large audience.

The performance moved with much more ease than that of the preceding night. Much credit is due Martha Cummings for her portrayal of the part of the "kid sister" in the cast.

The play was directed by Miss Olive Allen, member of the faculty at the school. Music between acts was furnished by the high school orchestra under the direction of William Hugh Miller.

KICKING PRACTICE

LESSON THREE

Learning the leg movement of the American crawl is rather simple, yet of great importance. Sit as close to the edge of the pool as possible, or if you are at the beach, on a rock so that your legs are free.

Move your legs up and down as if walking without bending the knees, getting all the drive from the hips. A point to stress is be certain that your toes are pointed.

SPRING VALLEY ELIMINATED IN SECOND ROUND OF CLASS B MEET

Sustaining its first defeat of the season, Spring Valley High School's baseball team, Greene County's entry in the Southwestern District Class B high school baseball tournament being held at the University of Dayton, was eliminated by St. Paul's High, of Champaign County, in the second round of the tourney Friday afternoon.

The Greene County champs won their way to the second round by disposing of Dayton Oakwood, 3 to 2, in the opening round Friday morning. In the afternoon, however, St. Paul's, which had previously eliminated Jackson Twp., nosed out the local entry, 2 to 1, in an eight-inning contest.

ALLEGED ACCOMPLICE OF XENIA MAN ARRESTED IN DRUG PROBE

Alleged to have been implicated with Charles M. Ridgway, Xenia druggist, in the operation of drug stores in Dayton and other Ohio cities in a conspiracy to defeat the Harrison narcotic law, Peter Onorato, under arrest in New York City, has been sought for months as the ring leader of one of the most gigantic dope rings ever operated in Dayton. It was disclosed Friday by Assistant District Attorney Robert Houston French.

Ridgway, former Cedarville druggist, was sentenced to serve a two-year term in Atlanta, Ga., penitentiary on a narcotic charge by Federal Judge Robert R. Nevin at Dayton following his indictment by a federal grand jury last November.

Onorato, from whom narcotic agents believe Ridgway obtained his supply, is quoted as having told federal operators at the time of his arrest that the ring leader suspect handled his own importations and that he in turn had drugs smuggled to him from workers on the New York docks who obtained the dope from trans-Atlantic steamers.

Through his alleged arrangement with the New Yorker, Ridgway, himself an incurable addict, is said to have distributed a large quantity of drugs to addicts throughout Dayton and vicinity.

That the druggist had purchased drugs through the New York channel amounting to several hundred dollars weekly was indicated by cancelled checks and intercepted letters introduced as evidence by the government against him.

Onorato was indicted with Ridgway by the federal grand jury last November and since that time has been sought by federal agents. Until recently, however he managed to evade the net spread by the government.

An effort will be made to return Onorato to Dayton to face prosecution on the narcotic charge but it is believed he may fight extradition to Ohio.

Ridgway at one time operated drug stores in Cedarville, Springfield and Dayton.

Other singles matches resulted as follows: Wilcox, (A), defeated Thomas, (K), 4-6, 6-0, 8-6; Swanson, (K), downed Ayres, (A), 6-4, 3-6, 6-1; Marsh, (A), beat Sawyer, (K), 6-4, 6-3, and Hoerr, (A), disposed of Alker, (K), 6-3, 6-1.

In the doubles, the Antioch combination of Captain Rutnam and Wilcox defeated Ruben and Sawyer of Kenyon, 7-5, 6-3, but Antioch lost the second match when Marsh and Ayres were beaten by Swanson and Thomas, 6-4, 6-4.

Antioch's net team has lost only two matches this season, being defeated by Wilberforce and Earlham.

The Antiochians will play West Virginia State College racquet welders at Yellow Springs next Saturday. It is also announced that Antioch will enter four players for the first time in the school's history in the Ohio Intercollegiate Association's tennis tournament to be held at Kenyon College May 29, 30 and 31.

TRUCK DRIVER WILL FACE CITATION FOR DRIVING OVERLOAD

Elmer Keplinger, driver of a truck for a Mr. Hofstetter, Akron, O., has been cited to appear in Probate Court next Tuesday morning to answer to a charge of road law violation for allegedly operating an overloaded truck and trailer through Xenia Saturday morning.

The truck driver by Keplinger was accompanied by a commercial tractor and trailer of the same Akron firm, both heavily loaded with tires.

The truck and tractor, appearing of excessive weight, were stopped by Sheriff Ohmer Tate and Deputy Sheriff George Sugden.

Upon investigation it was discovered that the commercial tractor was barely inside the load limit of twelve tons and also just under the maximum height of twelve and a half feet. This driver was allowed to proceed on to his destination at Cincinnati, but the companion truck was detained and weighed.

The truck was discovered to be a foot too high, officers said. In addition, after 1,000 pounds of tires had been unloaded, the load still weighed 30,250 pounds and was even then three tons and 1,250 pounds over-weight, it was claimed. The load of tires was consequently divided, another truck hired, and the driver was allowed to continue after being handed a court citation.

ELECTION WORKERS TO ATTEND MEETING

Members of the Greene County Board of Elections and Earl Short, clerk of the board, expect to attend a state-wide meeting of county election board officials to be held in the Hotel Deshler ball room at Columbus Thursday and Friday, May 22 and 23, at which State Secretary Clarence J. Brown will instruct the officials on the provisions of the new election code.

The first session of the two-day meeting will open at 1 o'clock Thursday afternoon with registration of the eighty-eight counties in order to determine the exact membership present.

A program is being arranged for a discussion of the new election laws and numerous displays of election equipment will be on exhibit.

NEW YORK, May 17.—The stock market played second fiddle to other attractions in Wall Street today.

Whether it was the entrance of the summer doldrums in the big speculative market, the Kentucky Derby, golf, fishing, or other diversions, speculation was at a low ebb today in all the important markets, and transactions on the big board fell well below 1,000,000 shares. Only by 24,000 shares changed hands in the first ninety minutes, a record for dullness that has not been duplicated in nearly two years.

Under such conditions, price movements were necessarily narrow and unimportant. The professionals roamed around the stock exchange floor in an effort to scalp profits here and there. A few of the tobacco stocks and specialties continued the moderate rally which was in progress at Friday's close, but for the most part the speculative favorites drifted in a narrow range, with a feeble rally in the offing as the losing gong sounded.

to stimulate speculation. However, it was regarded as not altogether unlikely that a few of them would be scratched.

The play on Gallant Fox figured to be stronger if the weather remained clear and the track was not sodden. Kentucky, perforce, will do its share of sentimental and even practical betting on Tannery but the track, heavy from recent rains, was drying out like an old orange and, unless there was a change in the interim, race time figured to find the going admirably suited to the speed of Gallant Fox.

He comes of mud stock but has yet to prove his ability in heavy going where Tannery ran the race of a true mudder several times last year and would ask nothing better than a track full of chocolate pudding when the field is called to the post.

But whoever presents the cup and whoever gets it, there will be a fortune in money and honor with out price for the winner and his official family.

For one thing, there is the $50,000 in added money that goes to the winning owner. For another, there is the fact that a victory for Gallant Fox would equal the record of Sir Barton of being the only horse in thoroughbred history to win both the Derby and the Preakness. For a third, there is possibility of Tannery overturning calculations and thus becoming one of the few horses in derby lore to be backed down from 100 to 1 to a pay off at the wire.

Also there is the case of Earl Sande, back in the saddle after leaving $70,000 on the doorstep as a trainer-owner last year. Sande will ride Gallant Fox as never before in the hope of winning his third derby bracket, thus equalling the age-old record of Isaac Murphy, a colored boy whose parents must have had a sense of humor.

High Foot, Crack Brigade, Gallant Fox and Gallant Knight are well placed in the post positions at Nos. 5, 6, 7 and 8 respectively, and ought to break cleanly for the barrier. Tannery, at No. 12, is well outside the zone of interference too, and should be in the clear for the long run down the stretch.

In fact, barring rain, all is in readiness for a fair race, a fast race and a furious one.

Elanda was in looking very pale and very lovely and very subdued. Du Pont got up and held out his arms to her.

"Good afternoon, Elanda. Come here a moment."

She ran over to him with a little sob.

"You've forgiven me?"

"Nothing to forgive in so far as I can see. Unless it is on your part. I knew you were too good for Greg all along. But, after all, he is our son and we wanted him to be happy and find a good wife."

Elanda started to say something. Du Pont stopped her with a laugh.

"Have you heard the news? You just ought to see Greg. You'd get the laugh of your life."

Elanda widened her eyes.

"Why—what is there to laugh about?"

"Then," he smiled, "you haven't heard." He leaned over confidentially. "He's living in bed, all done up in bandages, looking like last year's worst traffic accident. My dear, you'd die laughing."

"Laughing! I—I don't think there's anything so funny about Greg having a bad accident."

"Oh, but it wasn't an accident," Du Pont explained. "Sawnee Collier did it."

Elanda cried out unhappily: "Oh, no! Where is Sawnee?"

Du Pont fumbled at some papers on his desk and cleared his throat.

"Men who go to other men's houses and beat them to a pulp usually get sent to jail, don't they?"

Elanda sat down weakly and fumbled for her kerchief.

"Oh, this is too terrible! After all he has done for me."

Du Pont feigned surprise.

"I don't suppose you would care. You've never liked him much, have you? Why, he's only a ukelele player! Don't go wasting any tears over him."

Elanda put her head over on the desk.

"Oh, how can you say such a thing? Sawnee Collier is the dearest boy I've ever known. And, because of me, he has disgraced himself. She raised her head unhappily. "Will he lose his job?"

Du Pont shrugged.

"He doesn't need it, anyway. He has made half a million dollars on 'I Dreamed for a Day' alone."

Elanda dabbed at her eyes with her handkerchief.

"Oh! That's too bad. I—I didn't know he was rich."

"Too bad!" The old man turned and walked over to the window so she could not see how near he was to laughing. "Too bad that he has money."

"You wouldn't understand," Elanda sighed miserably.

"I wouldn't understand! You talk as though you were in love with him! I can't see why his money should have anything to do with your feeling for him."

Elanda sat up heavily.

"I've been terrible to Sawnee Collier, dad. I've never treated anyone else so mean in my life. I was high hat and superior and tried to make him feel inferior. I don't know why. I—I guess I knew I was falling in love with him and thought I hated him because he was upsetting my plans."

"Well," Du Pont sat down and faced him, "that's a fine howdy-do! What are you going to do about it? Tell him."

"I won't have the chance," Elanda smiled sadly and shook her auburn head. "He certainly wouldn't come back after the way I've treated him. Not Sawnee Collier. He isn't the type of a man a woman can walk on one day and call back the next."

"It seems to me he must have some interest in you or he wouldn't have risked going to jail for you."

"Oh, that was for Dixie, too, and for Bang and the baby. He always is good and kind. He wouldn't know how to be anything else."

Du Pont looked at his watch and jumped up.

"There's a man out here to see me. An important business matter. Step right into my inner office here and wait till I finish. We'll see whether we can't thresh all this out."

Elanda went.

She walked squarely into Sawnee's waiting arms.

She was so happy that she was scarcely surprised to find him there. He held her against his fast beating heart for a long time, and neither of them spoke.

Then Elanda broke the silence: "Oh, you heard?"

It was in a meek little voice that was half-embarrassed and half happy. He grinned into her starry eyes.

"Mr. Du Pont told me that all was fair in love and in war. He seemed to want to bring matters to a close in this love drama in a hurry."

Elanda put her finger to her

CHAPTER LX
Elanda came in looking very pale and very lovely and very subdued. Du Pont got up and held out his arms to her.

"Good afternoon, Elanda. Come here a moment."

She ran over to him with a little sob.

Raymond Griffith, the silk-hat comedian, who has done very little screen work since the termination of his contract with Famous Players, aspires to be a director.

Griffith's splendid training as a writer, actor and co-director should qualify him for a directorial post. He reads avidly and is one of the few people in Hollywood who has faith in the public. He considers the public intelligent while the average producer concedes the public to be fourteen years old. The public has been fourteen years old for many, many years.

Griffith's latest screen work was a bit as a French soldier in "All Quiet on the Western Front." Readers of Remarque's book will recall the dramatic episode when Paul meets the French soldier in a shell hole, slays him fatally and then is filled with remorse as his enemy succumbs.

Griffith plays the part of the French soldier and there is a strong, heart-rending scene between him and Lewis Ayres, the German soldier. As he dies his lower lip curls into a sardonic smile and an ironic gleam freezes in his sightless eyes. Although the scene unfolds quickly, it took a month to make and, although Griffith is unrecognizable behind a growth of beard, he is given outstanding credit for the bit. He played the role for nothing.

Griffith's lack of speaking voice is a handicap to his screen aspirations since the advent of the talkies. His best, as evidenced by shorts he has played, being a hoarse whistler. But this should be no handicap to a career as a director.

Lillian Roth, whose name has been on the tip of tongues of Xenia theatergoers since her remarkably fine performance in "The Love Parade" and in the current offering "Honey" at the Bijou, has been named for the leading female role in "Animal Crackers," the next picture starring the four Marx brothers. Miss Roth's hits with Lupino Lane in "The Love Parade" and with Skeets Gallagher in "Honey" indicated talent that deserved stardom recognition.

It is interesting to note that Greene County with a population of about 32,000, cast as many votes at the primary election as did Clark County with its 60,000 population or Dayton with its 100,000 residents.

THE STORY OF A GIRL WHO DESERVED TO WIN

CHAPTER I

"We shall all do our best to keep you from being lonely, Clara Dee," Phyllis announced chummily. "But it's a shame your dad had to leave you just now, when you've only been home from school less than two months."

"Oh! yes," agreed the object of Phyllis' sympathy. "But we all have to 'cash in' sometime. As you are being lonely without him, I've scarcely ever known him at all. The fact is, I doubt if I'd ever have known him well, had we both been in the same house for years. Poor Dad—he meant well, but he was too old-fashioned for his flapper-deb daughter. He worked while I slept and slept while I played. Is it any wonder we were strangers?" She spoke languidly, slouched down deep into the satin and lace of her chaise longue.

She paused to finish her cigarette, while she regarded the three girls through half closed eyes, beneath which the dark circles were emphasized by the penetrating noon-day light which had only just been admitted into the great, luxuriously appointed sitting room, the air being so fresh and cool, not caused by her recent grief, more probably by endless nights of revelry through many months.

"Don't waste any grief on me, my dears, nor fear that I shall pine away with loneliness. When I come into my money, I shall have such a round of festivities as will startle all the pious grouches from their moth-eaten conventions."

She laughed gayly, while her companions joined her with relief that the usual affected silences and sympathies would not be required of them by Clara Dee. Her three closest friends had returned with her to the magnificent town house from the last formal rites for the popular and prosperous man who had been her father. Bee, her chum (they had been inseparable at school and were often referred to as B. C. and D.) had insisted that they remain all night with her, and they now lounged about the room in their vari-colored sheer silk pajamas, from which hung carelessly the transparent robes they had flung about their shoulders.

Janice sprang over and flung her arm about Clara Dee, exclaiming, "Three cheers for Dee! I knew she wouldn't sit in sackcloth and ashes. She's too good a sport, and I, for one, shall be right with her in the festivities."

Either, who of the four was not smoking, sat with her arms clasped about her knees, upon which her golden, bobbed head rested. The others never troubled about her quiet moods—just now she was thinking that had she ever known a father, she would have made at least some effort to have known him well. For Clara Dee's father she had always held the deepest respect, though mixed somewhat with awe, and she was sure that the right daughter would have penetrated that thin outer shell of taciturn reserve.

A maid entered with a tray from which she laid the table for their breakfast. Despite the shining linen and silver, the elaborate breakfast service, the perfectly broiled lamb chops in their iridescent golden buttered toast and properlyiced mecons, the girls exhibited little interest in the food served to them. They chattered and sipped and nibbled and left the table with three-fourths of the food untouched. They had all settled in their favorite positions in deep chairs and were fitting fresh cigarettes into their holders when the maid announced, "Mr. Gregory would like to see you at once, Miss Clara, in the library, please."

"Oh! bother! Well, I'll be right down. I suppose I had better humor him—oh, girls," suddenly interested. "He may have come to break the news about Dad's will. Now I know just how many millions I'll have to play with! His pet and independent as a gray and black chickadee, she dashed into her dressing room and returned presently, clad in pajamas of sheerest black crepe, covered demurely with a lustrous robe of black brocade, satin from the sleeves of which hung two long, black tassels, sweeping the floor as she walked. "Do I look sufficiently mournful, my dear?" she asked in a subdued voice. There was no immediate reply. Indeed, she looked so pitiable as she stood with her hands turned toward them, wrapped in the black folds of the clinging robe, her shining hair making a narrow frame for the white, strained face with the blackened gray eyes and their dark circles, that for a moment, an instinctive flash of pity shone in their faces.

"You look very sweet, Dee," Either broke the silence. "Black is strikingly becoming to you."

"Well, adios, and wish me luck," she swept out of the door with a great show of bravado but as she descended the broad, winding stairs and crossed the wide hall to the library door which stood ajar, her air of nonchalance disappeared, a pathetic wistfulness shadowed her face and her hands trembled on the door knob as she entered the room where her father had lived so many hours alone, a room almost as unfamiliar to her as those in homes which she had never entered. As she hesitated in the doorway, beyond which waited the man who would tell her how generous her father had been in his provision for her, she wished for an instant that she had known more about that father. "It's not my fault," she murmured. "He sent me away to school, urged me to spend my vacations abroad or wherever I chose. He never asked me to live with him nor share his confidence."

She entered the room slowly and crossed to the table where Mr. Gregory stood. He stepped forward to greet her and held her hand while he seated her in a high-backed chair.

"I hope I didn't disturb you too early," Miss Forester, he apologized, as he drew another chair close to hers and sat down. He felt strangely ill at ease with this lovely girl whom he had jounced on his knee when she was a wee child not so long ago, and about whom he now knew as little as had her father. Her arrogance and affected callousness stirred his pity to the depths and he longed to treat her as he might have a daughter of his own, rather than her impersonal legal adviser. "I thought you would wish to know your exact circumstances as soon as possible," he paused. "Something in his expression caused her to start a little and she was conscious of the pounding of numerous pulses over her body. Though she had anticipated this moment many times during the past few days, she found that it was not being nearly as enjoyable as she had expected. The fact was she had not so much planned this moment. When the revelation of her father's last wishes should be made to her—rather the hours and days and years following, when she would be the mistress of millions, referred to in the chronicles of society as one of the wealthiest girls of the world, sought after by wealth and nobility as a coveted bride. She had visioned her presentation at foreign courts, titled suitors, obsequious deference to her slightest wishes. She would now probably make her debut to society somewhat later than her father had planned, out of conventional respect to his memory, but it would be none the less brilliant when it occurred."

"And, to my beloved daughter, I bequeath the sum of one dollar."

Mr. Gregory cleared his throat and rustled the papers spread before him on the table. His deep, clear voice recited slowly through the mysterious legal terms, read with painstaking enunciation through the long list of benevolences and charities. To Clara Dee, sitting tensely rigid in the high-backed chair, the room began slowly to revolve in wide circles and Mr. Gregory's voice to sound more faintly with each sentence but she heard every word distinctly. Faster, the circle whirled and smaller it grew, faintly and more faintly came the attorney's voice; now the circle contained only their two selves and she was whirling so madly that she had to exert herself to hear the words he spoke. Dimly, she reflected as the list continued, that she had never fully appreciated just how wealthy a man her father was.

"And—" the lawyer finally paused impressively, "to Clara Dee Forester, my beloved daughter, I bequeath the sum of," again he paused dramatically—"one dollar."

The circle closed upon her, a rushing sound filled her ears, her fingers gripped the edge of the table, she gasped—then blackness, oblivion.

Some moments later when she opened her eyes inquiringly, she was lying on the library couch and Mr. Gregory was bending anxiously over her. He continued to chafe her hands and asked gently, "All right now, Miss Forester? Quite a blow to you, I know—a very painful duty for me, I assure you. All professional men are called upon at times to perform very disagreeable services. You had better not try to talk now. I shall be glad to answer your questions as best I may, when you are stronger."

Ah! yes, it was quite real then; that hideous dream from which she thought she had just awakened, was true. One dollar, why—why—then suddenly gained her self-control. Yes why? She must make herself sit up and talk sensibly to Mr. Gregory. He could tell her why, of course. She struggled into a sitting posture, took a sip from the goblet he offered her and fixed her wide, gray eyes on his, inquiringly.

"Then it's true that father left me nothing?"

"One dollar," he corrected her carefully.

Her soft lips, to which the color had returned, twisted into a wry little smile, then straightened with determination.

"Why? Mr. Gregory?"

"That is one of the conditions of his strange request, Miss—I am going to call you Clara Dee just as I used to do—she nodded acquiescence—"that I should not explain any of his reasons to you, at present, anyway. I have seen very little of you since your childhood and to me you are still the little daughter of my closest friend. All that keeps me from offering you a home and assistance is his own request that I should not do so." A faint moisture filled his eyes but he smiled kindly.

She gazed about the great high-ceilinged room, with its solid rows of beautifully bound volumes, the priceless paintings and tapestries the massive table with a beautiful blue-lustre urn of majolica in the center of its mirror-like surface. Through the open cathedral win-who will be interested in your welfare, at least, I am one who will be genuinely interested and I shall expect to see you frequently."

From his wallet he selected a crisp new banknote in each four corners of which the lowest numerical glared ominously, solemnly placed it in her hand—as ceremoniously as if he were endowing her with the fortune she had anticipated only a short half-hour before.

"There is no reason why I should accept this, Mr. Gregory. It will be of no value to me, so far as living is concerned." She had yet to appreciate that there are one hundred cents in every dollar, of which each small part can be of great importance, if necessary, just as the smallest portion of any substance consists of tiny molecules and tinier atoms, each serving its own important end, however insignificant. While always, the importance of each depends upon its disposal and use. Heretofore, the dollars had been the atoms which composed the unmeasured whole of Clara Dee's wealth.

"It is my duty to execute your father's will to the last letter. Keep it, my dear, as a souvenir, if nothing more."

She accepted gratefully the warm handshake of his farewell and ascended the stairs with her little head held high as the butler closed the massive doors behind the lawyer. In the upper hall before her own suite of rooms, she stood for a moment, leaning weakly against the wall. Then, almost instantly, she clenched her small white hands until the tendons stretched taut and flung her head up jauntily. A volley of questions greeted her as she opened her sitting room door. She dropped into a chair and kicked off the black satin boudoir mules, indifferently.

The baccalaureate services for the graduating class of East High School will be held at Zion Baptist Church Sunday, May 25 at 3 p. m. and not on May 18 as previously announced. The Rev. O. H. McGowan, pastor of the Main Street Christian Church, will deliver the sermon to seventeen graduates.

At the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wright, Columbus Road, the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage was celebrated Saturday, May 10, afternoon and evening. The house was beautiful in the color scheme of pink and gold. Two hundred and eighteen persons responded to the invitations sent out by Mr. and Mrs. Guy Clemens, their son-in-law and daughter, honoring their parents on this occasion. The out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Williamson and son Earl, Mrs. Anna Love and son Ray, New Albany, Ind.; Mrs. Daisy Slade, Cincinnati, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Stewart, Dayton; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Whitman, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Burns and father, Mr. George Smith, Springfield; Mrs. William Guy and Mrs. Harry Allen, Urbana; Bishop Gregg of the Fifth Episcopal District; Mr. Joseph Wright, Chicago, Ill. Many beautiful and useful gifts were presented Mr. and Mrs. Wright, among them being one hundred dollars in gold coins.

Mr. Frank Burton, E. Second St., received word Friday morning of the death of his sister, Mrs. Anna Morgan, Lebanon, O. She had been ill only one week suffering from a complication of diseases. The funeral services will be Monday afternoon at the Lebanon Baptist Church of which she was a member. Interment in the Lebanon cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Newsome of Yellow Springs, are rejoicing over their first born, a son, who came to their home Wednesday, May 14. The babe has been named Thomas Andrew.

The annual thanksgiving services of Damon Lodge No. 29, Knights of Pythias and Unity Court No. 12, O. O. C. will be held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 at the Third Baptist Church. The program follows: Music by the Third Baptist choir; invocation by Prelate L. P. Hillard; music by choir; remarks by Master of Ceremonies A. C. Scurry; reading of proclamation, L. W. Clark; reading of proclamation from Unity Court, Mrs. J. W. Scott; in memoriam, G. I. Gaines; musical selection, Miss Nina Carroll; annual sermon, by Dr. T. J.
